Senator Promises Aid To FEPC Supporters

WASHINGTON—A group of demonstrators, led by the Citizens Committee of Negro Women, held a series of meetings in support of the Civil Rights Act of 1957. Senator Edward Kennedy, speaking at a rally, promised that the legislation would be passed. He emphasized the importance of civil rights and equality for all Americans. Kennedy stated that the bill would help to end discrimination and ensure fair treatment for everyone. The legislation includes provisions for affirmative action and fair housing, as well as establishing a federal agency to enforce the law.

Wallace's Candidacy Does Not Help the Progressive Cause. But The Democrats May Gain Unity by Loyalist Socialism

There are many ways of looking at things. All of them are valid. The only thing that matters is the freedom to look at them.

What About You?

The Novels, "Kingsblood Royal" and "Gentlemen's Agreement," Portray The Dangerous Idolacy of Race and Religious Prejudice

Public opinion is the lifeblood of any democracy. It is the lifeblood of any healthy society. It is the lifeblood of any human race.
