A Tribute to Frederick Douglass
By GOVERNOR THOMAS E. DEWEY

It is altogether fitting that particular tribute be paid in New York State to the career and achievements of Frederick Douglass, since it was in New York that he lived and drew his inspiration to carry on the work to which he devoted his life. The story of that life is one of the most inspiring in our history. Born into conditions of involuntary servitude 131 years ago, in times when the bass injustice of human bondage had not yet achieved the full recognition of enlightened men, Frederick Douglass by dint of his own efforts and determination achieved his own freedom. Endowed with natural gifts of eloquence and leadership, he nurtured these talents to a point beyond that of most of his contemporaries, then devoted them untringly to the cause of freedom for his fellowmen.

We are proud that Frederick Douglass, like many other Americans distinguished for their activities in behalf of freedom, was a citizen of New York where so much pioneer work has been done to foster a real, live, working democracy. In the State government of New York the people are served by officials appointed because of their abilities and without regard to their race, creed, color or national origin. New York led the way by the enactment of the Anti-Discrimination Law which has fulfilled all the hopes entertained for it when it was passed and signed.

The same freedom in educational pursuits has been given added guarantees through recent passage of a measure eliminating undemocratic barriers to admission to institutions of learning throughout the State.

Part and parcel of this steady progress also is the recent action of the State Medical Society in removing all racial barriers to its membership, thus stimulating the free professional association which makes for increased progress in medical science.

These are but some of the ways in which, day by day, the work of Frederick Douglass and other early fighters for freedom for all, is being carried forward. Each such step, however, also contributes to an enduring monument, a tangible, lasting memorial to the high ideals and objectives for which Frederick Douglass lived and fought.

No Draft Calls by Race -- Hershey
WASHINGTON -- No draft calls will be made by race "rang every effort will be made to prevent race from being a factor in any functioning of the Selective Service System," it was declared here today by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director.

Gen. Hershey's statement was contained in a letter to Walter White, NAACP secretary, who had inquired about the designation of race on some blanks, being used in the new field of producing atomic energy. "Association branches in key areas are being alerted to report to the National Office on problems of discrimination in this field, which they are unable to settle locally.

Among the important contractors are the General Electric Company, the Carbide and Carbon Corporation, and the DuPont Co.

The Women's Industrial News Letter

By EVELYN A. CARTER

A very impressive means of recruiting women into "take care" that is now being generally adopted by Industries is the Safety Board. This is similar to the Safety Board in its general and distinct features. The widespread success of the Safety Board has resulted from its clear and striking importance on the worker's mind. A very notable improvement in industrial functioning might require attention to the question of what has resulted from the use of a safety device. The following is a sample of the board's work:

Safety Don't

Don't forget your eyes—wear safety glasses.

Don't forget your feet—wear safety shoes.

Don't put material in walk ways. Keep them clean.

Don't climb defective ladders.

Ignore safety rules—obey them.

Don't take chances—work safely.

Women May Enlist

Women are now being asked to enlist in the armed services. The initial call was made by the U.S. Army on April 6. The call was followed by a request for volunteers from the Navy and the Marine Corps. The enlistment of women in the armed services is expected to continue until September 30.

Profile in New Yorker Magazine

New York.—Phyllis Fish, the first woman to graduate in graduate schools in the South, is now in New York. Miss Fish, who was graduated from the University of Virginia, was appointed assistant professor of English at the University of North Carolina. She is the first woman to be appointed to a professorship in the humanities in the South. The University of North Carolina is one of the few universities in the South to grant degrees to women in the humanities.

Women of the Year

Women are being honored for their contributions to society. The United Nations has named 100 women as "Women of the Year." The list includes women from around the world who have made significant contributions to society. The woman of the year in 2023 is Malala Yousafzai, a Pakistani activist for girls' education.

NAACP Branch Officer Resigns

NORFOLK—Jerry O. Gilliam, executive secretary for the Norfolk branch of the NAACP, has resigned August 22 to run for Congress on the Progressive party ticket. In a letter to W. E. B. Du Bois, chairman of the branch executive committee, Mr. Gilliam said: "I am writing to you to solicit your support in my campaign for Congress."

"In order to avoid any possible conflict of interest, I have asked the NAACP to withdraw its support of my campaign. I am running as an independent candidate and I would appreciate your support." The letter was signed by Mr. Gilliam.

Business Leaders Stress Individual Enterprise

GARY, IND.—(NIPR) Considerable interest has been expressed in many quarters in the present address by a prominent Gary business head, John W. Anderson, president of the Armour Company of that city. In an address commemorating the 25th anniversary of the first appearance of the Armour Company in the American market for the first time in the 20th century, Mr. Anderson made a clear and consistent appeal in favor of individual enterprise and against the idea of governmental control.

"I think that the most important lesson of the past 25 years is the fact that individual enterprise is the key to success in business," Mr. Anderson said. "We cannot afford to let government interfere with the freedom of our business leaders to make decisions that are best for their companies."
