1974 Civic Medal Awarded to Dr. Charles Lunsford

Dr. Charles Lunsford

Dr. Charles Lunsford was honored with the Rochester Medical School Alumni Award. Born in Macon, Georgia, Dr. Lunsford graduated from Howard Preparatory School in Washington, D.C., in 1913, with a bachelor’s degree. He went on to receive his M.D. degree with honors from Howard University Medical School. Later, he was to be instrumental in arranging for Rochester to send black students to his Alma Mater.

In the field of medicine, Dr. Lunsford persuaded the University of Rochester Medical School to admit black interns, residents and nurses. He succeeded in getting black nurses into the local nursing schools and hospitals, and he paved the way for the Red Cross to process the blood of blacks.

It was also here in Rochester that, in addition to his medical accomplishments, Dr. Lunsford was ahead of his time in pioneering improvements in social and racial problems. Through his efforts, the YMCA residence was made available to blacks, as were the mezzanines of theaters, and the dormitory of the Eastman School of Music. Black teachers were recruited to help influence the City Schools, and local manufacturing companies began to employ members of minority groups in these areas.

For such pioneering efforts, with their obvious beneficial results for the Rochester Community, the Rochester Museum and Science Center designated him as the 1974 Civic Medal Award winner. It is being presented to Dr. Charles T. Lunsford.

ceous which you may have about this proposal and I know that you are not looking forward to in-

I state here for the record that the Mayor and the City Council are willing to take full responsibility for any apparent increase in the County tax bill which this proposal might cause.
If there are legal obstacles which might complicate this matter we all know that there are

basis for obtaining New Legislative Authority to allow us to reach these ends. We will gladly work with you to bring this about in Albany.
I request that you amend the resolution which is before you this evening to accommodate this request.
In essence, our proposal will not cost you anything, it will not pass on the costs of the City of

Thank you very much.

Colgates Observes 150th Anniversary

by Charles F. Lackett

Bexley Hall, the Episcopal seminary member of the Colgate Rochester Divinity School/Bexley Hall/Crozer Theological School cluster of graduate theological schools in Rochester, N.Y., will mark the 150th anniversary of its founding in events of celebration on Thursday, Oct. 31, and Friday, Nov. 1.

Principal participants in the sesquicentennial celebration will be the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, immediate past Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, and the Very Rev. Robert F. Capon, Dean of the Mercer School of Theology on Long Island and provocative theologian and writer.

Bishop Hines will preach at an Anniversary Eucharist at 4:30 p.m. Oct. 31 in the Interfaith Chapel of the University of Rochester, with which the seminaries are affiliated.

Special eucharistic music for the service, written by Samuel B. Adler, chairman of the Department of Composition at the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music, will be performed by Eastman School musicians.

Prior to the Anniversary Eucharist, Dean Capon will give the first of two sesquicentennial lectures in the Auditorium of the seminaries, 1100 S. Goodman St. In his first lecture, Dean Capon will discuss "Orders and the nature of those specific needs within the Church which have produced an ordained ministry. His second Lecture, at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 1 in the Chapel of the seminaries, will deal with "Ministry" and his perceptions concerning emergent new forms of ministry, both for those who are ordained and those who are not. Dean Capon's many writings include two recent books, THE SUPPER OF THE LAMB and HUNTING THE DIVINE FOX.

Bishops, alumni and alumnae of Bexley Hall, and many friends of the seminary have been invited to share in all the sesquicentennial events, which will include a Sesquicentennial Banquet the evening of Oct. 31 in the seminaries' Auditorium.

The sesquicentennial also will be marked by publication of BEXLEY HALL: 150 YEARS — A BRIEF HISTORY, written by Richard M. Spielman, professor of church history and liturgies on the faculty of the seminaries.

In 1824, Philander Chase, the first Bishop of Ohio, founded what shortly was to become known as Bexley Hall. It was the third seminary of the Episcopal Church in this country, and was the "frontier" seminary, predated only by seminaries in Manhattan, and Virginia.

The new seminary took its name from Lord Bexley, from whom Bishop Chase, on a special mission to England, raised funds for the buildings and seminary. For more than 140 of its 150 years, Bexley Hall has been a spiritual home to many of the young men who have gone on to serve the Church both within and outside the Episcopal Church.

years. Bentley Hall was the divinity school of Kenyon College—which shares founder and founding date—in Gambier, Ohio. In 1969, seeking a more urban and ecumenical context, Bentley Hall moved to Rochester and to affiliation with Colgate Rochester Divinity School and the Roman Catholic diocesan seminary, St. Bernard's, as members of the Rochester Center for Theological Studies.

Bentley Hall moved students, faculty, and library to the Colgate Rochester campus, where two of those two schools were joined in 1970 by the Crozer Theological Seminary, formerly in Chester, Pa., and to form a unique cluster of seminaries, one campus, with one faculty, and one curriculum.

The Very Rev. Ray H. Rockwell, Dean of Bentley Hall, summarizes the mission of Bentley Hall on the eve of its sesquicentennial in these words:

"The Episcopal Church worked and prayed and thought in a way through renewed commitment to the finest possible theological education — academic and spiritual and pastoral — for its future clergy. The Church decided that preparation for modern ministry could best take place in a setting which bore the stamp of the real world in which it would ask its priests to carry out God's ministry. Bentley Hall came to Rochester in response to that commitment — into an urban and ecumenical setting, which is endowed with the special benefits of a Roman seminary and also with one of the country's leading universities, the University of Rochester.

"We are busy here working to fulfill some of the promises of the '60s. We repulse in our life within this family. We are honored for who we are and challenged by a rich variety of Christian people to maintain our Anglican integrity and at the same time widen our vision of the Church.

"There is great promise in the present and, I am sure, an even brighter hope for the future of Bentley Hall as we work to prepare God's people to minister."

You want to know what Congressman Barber Conable has done for you? Try these on for size . . .

He got an increase in the child care tax deduction for mothers who have to pay somebody to look after their kids while they work.

The international trade bill he sponsored saved thousands of jobs for Rochester people working in export industries.

He helped to write the National Legal Services Act that provides money for lawyers and legal fees for folks who can't afford legal services themselves.

The pension reform bill he co-sponsored insures the pensions rights of millions of working people.

His plan to provide money for long-term nursing home care, day care and homemaker services for older citizens is expected to be part of the new national health insurance program.

He sponsored a bill to knock out discrimination against women when it comes to credit buying.

This isn't just cheap talk! This is action for you in Washington!

If you live west of the River, never mind the cheap talk from the big shots! Put your vote on BARBER CONABLE for Congress! He's working for you!

FREDERICK DOUGLASS VOICE
Kodak reports to the community

We'd like you to meet some Kodak people.

They're welders, steamfitters, electricians. And they're women, learning the job on the job.

That's what we mean by equal opportunity. Not just giving qualified people the same chance. But giving many inexperienced people the chance to become qualified.

Regardless of sex.

Some women are gaining the kind of practical trade experience, through a hands-on training program, that will help them prepare for higher-paying skilled jobs.

The program stresses a shop environment and lasts up to a year. It includes several weeks of training, with the balance of the time providing on-the-job experience. In addition, the trainees complete classroom work in such subjects as shop practices, mathematics, blueprint reading, and job safety.

For example, since the first class began in 1967, more than 280 men and women at Kodak Park alone have completed the program and earned better jobs.

Better jobs for men and women alike. That's it's equal opportunity. But it's also good business. Why? Because it helps create a climate of greater career development for all our people—male and female alike and black and white. That in turn translates into a more successful performance by Kodak in meeting the needs of customers for better products and services.

500,000 answers to your questions.

Maybe you’re wondering why your picture of Aunt Agatha’s 67th birthday party looks like they were taken by a blindfolded chimpanzee.

Ask us. We ought to know. After all, we’ve answered over 500,000 questions in the past three years alone . . . at 45 Kodak Consumer Centers around the country. All kinds of questions about pictures, picture-taking, and Kodak amateur equipment.

You can phone our local Consumer Center at 458-6143. Or just stop by 800 Lee Road.

We’ll give you on-the-spot, free-of-charge help. Even make minor adjustments on your amateur Kodak equipment. If it’s something more complicated, we’ll tell you what’s wrong and what it will cost to get it fixed.

Although our Consumer Centers are a relatively new idea, we’ve been answering photographic questions since our business began.

Our long-established Photo Information Department, for instance, handled 100,000 inquiries last year.

George Eastman knew it back then, we knew it now. If we can help you take better pictures, chances are you’ll take more pictures.

Pictures like this one. It’s from a portfolio of 12 photographs submitted by Chicago teenager David Myers, winner of this year’s $1000 Kodak college scholarship grant.

But pictures like this don’t happen by accident, unless you know your way around cameras. All three top winners of the 1975 Photography Awards, conducted by Scholastic Magazine, Inc. and sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company, developed their skills in school photography classes.

So when David Myers spotted this hole in a fence, he planned his shot. Up to a point. As he was framing one young boy, a whole gang rushed to the spot, and this was the accidentally-on-purpose result.

He also brings an individual point of view to his photography. Roaming around his hometown taking people pictures, he captured the flavor of the Maxwell Street neighborhood with the appropriate faces of a street vendor, a street guitarist, a puppy salesman, kids playing, and a drifter with his dog.

Besides the scholarship winners, 300 junior and senior high school students won cash awards. There are also regional honors, medallions of excellence, and a study-travel scholarship for six weeks in Europe. Local winners were Mark Graupman, Erling Johansen, Peter Knausdorf, Wayne Panepinto, and William Zimmer.

If you’d like complete details about the 1975 Photography Awards, including entry forms, write to Contest Activities, Corporate Information Department, Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N.Y. 14650.

Are you among the missing?

If you’re the survivor of a Kodak employee, we may be trying to locate you right now. Because you may be eligible for coverage under the new Kodak Survivor Health Care Programs, effective January 1, 1979.

According to Frederick S. Welsh, Kodak vice-president and director of Corporate Relations, "the development of the Survivor Health Care Program reflects our continuing concern about the health of Kodak families as well as their financial well-being. This program offers comprehensive health care coverage under the company’s group plans to unmarried survivors of deceased Kodak employees and retirees, or of most disabled employees now deceased."

Kodak will pay 50 or 100 percent of the premium, depending on the age of the employee and survivor at the time of the employee’s death. Thus, in addition to covering the health care needs of participating survivors, the Survivor Health Care Program will also help to relieve some of the financial burden of rising medical costs at a time when personal insurance may be limited.

Think you’re eligible? Or know a Kodak survivor who may be? We’ll be looking for and side for those who are. Yet no matter how diligently we search, we may not find every one.

You can find us easily, though. Just contact Benefits Plan Services, Dept. 034, Eastman Kodak Company, 343 State Street, Rochester, N.Y. 14650, or call 716-724-4650.
