URBAN LEAGUE OF ROCHESTER, NEW YORK

Rochester, N.Y. — September 16, 1977

The Urban League of Rochester released a report today alleging, "over three-fourths of the businesses surveyed in inner-city neighborhoods were found to engage in fraudulent practices."

According to Consumer Affairs Specialists Ronald Crimm and Beverly Jackson, the poor and often unsophisticated consumer is the victim of treachery and unscrupulousness in the market place. Urban League staff further assert that the poor must be protected especially from fraudulent advertising.

The report entitled "Consumer Fraud In The Inner City: The Need For Consumer Protection," is based on results of a study conducted on twenty-five (25) local businesses. During a three (3) month period, more than 118 audits by staff and volunteers documented incidences of unfair trade practices in the inner-city area. The report focuses on two unethical practices, so called "bait and switch" and "sales or item misrepresentation."

The Urban League report is timely, especially at this critical juncture in urban management, and law enforcement agencies in their "unscrupulousness" to the problem of inner-city consumer fraud. Findings of the surveys were presented to the District Attorney earlier in the year, but no action has been taken on the matter. Urban League staff urges that the Monroe County Legislature operationalize the Consumer Protection Agency created on paper in 1975.

Finally, the report calls for collective community action in abolishing a system proven to discriminate against the inner-city resident.

In order to establish the need for an official consumer protection agency with enforcement powers, the League has instituted a data collection system called ICAN.

The Inner City Agency Network (ICAN) Demonstration Project is a C.I.C.T.A. funded and administered by the Urban League. ICAN is designed to collect and publish complaints from inner-city consumers.

Several new staff are located at neighborhood sites to enable residents in specific target areas to register their consumer related complaints with consumer advisors. ICAN sites are located at Montgomery Center, Geneseo Settlement, W.E.D.G.E. and Urban League headquarters at 50 West Main Street.

Howard Coles.

In this historic church, Rochester's first Negro newspaper, the NORTH STAR, was published. Located at the corner of Favor and Spring Streets, it was an important station on the Underground Railroad. The large Rose Window above the door is a memorial to Frederick Douglass, who published the NORTH STAR. — From The Cradle of Freedom, by Howard W. Coles.

Early History of Mumford Baptist Church

IN THE BEGINNING:
I talk to God — "In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

For centuries past, every nation and race of recognized ability and merit included in the world's history, has taken pride in revering to some outstanding feature of its existence; pointing with pride to some particular event, type of culture or accomplishment which in turn has made this people known to the world and added to its national glory and life.

The American Negro in this area is no exception in this matter, for he can point with great pride and esteem to the life and character of the humble servant of Stonewall Jackson, the Reverend Clayton A. Coles.

Clayton A. Coles was a product of the slave system and the trials, tribulations and vicissitudes suffered by this humble servant were written on his back by the slave-driver's lash. Like many slaves, he was denied the right of knowing his origin; just who his parents were. But his faint memories stood him in good stead and somehow he remembered that he perhaps saw the light of day in the city of Chattanooga, Tennessee in the year 1838, 23 years before the Civil War began.

During his early life as a slave, he worked for many masters on many plantations until he was finally acquired by Stonewall Jackson, the famous Confederate General. From this time on, his life as a slave was not a hard one because the Lord had blessed him with a good and religious master. It was during this period that he learned to read and write and became the body-servant of Jackson. It was, therefore, only natural that when the War between the States broke out, he accompanied his master into battle.

When the Civil War ended, as a free man, he went to work at his trade, that of broom-maker in Virginia. All his life he had been religiously inclined, so it was not unnatural that he entered the ministry. On August 26, 1860, by formal passage of a vote from the Ebenezer Baptist Church of Culpepper County Virginia, he was exalted "with the full and cordial approbation of his brethren, to exercise his gifts in preaching the Gospel of Christ." The ordination certificate is attested to by the Rev. W. J. Reid, pastor (of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Culpepper County Virginia), Henry Holmes and Henry Fraser, Henry Holmes and Henry Johnson.

Although Rev. Coles had had no formal education, he was an eloquent speaker, and seeing the need among his people in this area who had migrated here to work as tenant farmers, he began holding meetings in the Baptist parsonage which still stands along the Belcoda Road. In 1891, he founded the Belcoda Baptist Church of Mumford, New York. This church was incorporated in August of 1898; the name was later changed to the Mumford Second Baptist Church. At that time, he lived in a little house near the Belcoda Cemetery that he tended for a quarter of a century where he rests today beside his wife Ellen.

Along with Rev. Coles, the early founders of the church were the Rev. J. W. Jeffries of Long Island; John Gordon who served as Clerk; Edward Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clark and Lucy Gordon. Under membership, 8 persons were received by personal experience, 9 under Watch Care and 1 by Baptism. The certificate of incorporation, dated the 17th of August 1898 includes the following brethren: Clayton A. Coles, Jarrid Fraser, Henry Holmes and Henry Johnson.

By way of affiliation, we have the following letter-dated July 7, 1902. From the Rev. W. J. Reid, pastor of the University Avenue Baptist Church in Rochester, New York, it states: "Dear Brother Coles: I found these papers in my desk as I was cleaning up and thought they might be of interest enough for you to preserve them. I think they were given to me some time ago by Mr. Hebbard. Hope you are prospering. Yours etc. W. J. Reid."

It is worth noting that despite the vicissitudes and metamorphosis of time, the Mumford Second Baptist Church has had a continued record of service; the first church founded in this area was the A.M.E. Zion Church (still in existence) located on Favor Street in Rochester, N.Y. As a grandson of the founder of the Mumford Church, we realize the delicacy of the subject especially when we think of giving credit where credit is due for the yeoman service that was performed by these early pioneers. Suffice it to say, that space and time do not permit the naming of all those who have made a lasting contribution to the

Kodak reports to the community

Some of the best features of this machine aren't in it.

They're in front of it.

To become a reality, the Kodak Ektaprint copier-duplicators drew on the expertise of thousands of men and women in various disciplines and divisions throughout Kodak.

We have been marketing the microcomputer-controlled, copier-duplicators for two and a half years in other parts of the country. These sophisticated office machines diagnose their own problems and automatically signal what should be done to correct them.

Now, as part of a major expansion program, the full line (six different models) of these copier-duplicators is available here in the Rochester area. So are the skills of this team of Kodak people in the photograph. They keep customers satisfied by keeping the machines running with maximum efficiency.

We're proud of the achievements and quality of our Ektaprint copier-duplicators (they produce 4300 copies an hour, and some models stack, staple, and collate completely finished sets). We're prouder still of the Kodak people who make them possible and popular.

The games people play.

Competition often makes qualities of self-confidence, discipline, and teamwork which later distinguish people in the business world. That's one reason Kodak sponsors the Kodak All-America Football Team, to acknowledge the men who have shown exceptional desire to achieve excellence by displaying a combination of outstanding athletic ability, sportsmanship, and leadership. Only 22 of 12,000 college football players will be so honored this fall. (Another good reason, of course, is our keen interest in motion picture film used widely as a coaching tool.)

The Kodak All American is the only team in the country whose members are selected by the men who know the players best, the coaches. Kodak has sponsored the team since 1960. It has included such gridiron greats as Dick Butkus, Gale Sayers, O. J. Simpson, Bert Jones and Tony Dornett.

Kodak also sponsors the "Coach of the Year" awards through the American Football Coaches Association, whose members recognize coaches in the university and college divisions whose superior overall leadership—regardless of wins and losses—might go unnoticed. When you're watching the college football games this fall, watch for the individuals who display unusual determination and drive. You may be looking at one of the 22 Kodak All Americans, or a Kodak Coach of the Year.

Get the inside story.

What part does photography play in the manufacture of a television set? See for yourself.

Visit the exhibit "Photofabrication in Your World," which shows some of the sophisticated products that depend for their manufacture on the imaging technology commonly associated with photography.

Photofabrication is the process of coating a light-sensitive plastic on the surface of a material, usually metal, and forming an image photographically to produce a stencil. This stencil protects selected areas of the material while other areas are etched away. It is used extensively in the manufacture of microelectronic circuits, telephone components, newspaper printing plates, pocket calculators, microwave ovens controls, cameras, and many other products.

For all those years, all our thanks.

Any company, no matter what it makes or sells or services, is only as successful as its people.

Kodak pays tribute to more than 2000 V.I.P.'s this week. People from many divisions of the company, from New York to Honolulu, will be honored at a banquet at Kodak Park Recreation Center.

The occasion? Their 25th or 40th anniversary with Kodak. We're fortunate to have so many good men and women with the desire, the skills, and the "stick-to-it" attitude to make ideas work.

We're proud they are with us.

This week.

And all the weeks that added up to all those years.

Kodak chairman Walter Fulton congratulates William A. Duplisea at last year's banquet, on completing 25 years with the company.
RG&E is exploring the sun.

We all have a lot to learn from an experiment being conducted on the Rochester Institute of Technology campus. RG&E, RIT and Rochester Home Builders are building a home to test the practicality of solar heating in our climate. Solar energy will supply 50 to 65% of the heating and cooling requirements of the 1,800 square-foot home. An electric heat pump will provide supplementary heating and cooling during cloudy weather. Standard electrical service will be required for lighting and other electrical needs. The experiment will help determine how solar energy can supplement conventional energy forms and thereby help ease the energy crisis.

RG&E believes solar energy has an important future role in our total energy mix. But even if all the homes built between now and the year 2000 derived half their heat from the sun, that would amount to only 2% of our country’s total energy needs. Using solar power on a large scale for electric power generation has only reached the developmental stage. Power from the sun, wind, tides, even from heat trapped within the earth are all possible energy alternatives. However, to meet our immediate energy needs we’ll have to depend on currently available energy forms. New power plants producing electricity from coal and nuclear fuels will be critical in meeting our growing energy needs over the next several decades. We have to depend on what’s available now while we’re waiting for the sun. For more information on solar and other alternate sources of energy, write: RG&E, Box 410, Rochester, N.Y. 14602. Or phone: 546-2700.

THE SLAVE

The slave that worked like a dog all day, then goes to bed without any pay.

From the early morning to the setting sun,
not stopping once! till his work is done.

Made to work by the sound of a whip,
living in fear of making a slip.

From the shores of the Nile to a Mississippi Valley,
from the heart of Egypt to a Harlem alley.

And from the shores of Africa come a story to ute to tell, shackled in ships like the pits of hell.

From his home in Africa as a king he stood to a cabin in Georgia made of wood.

"Work! work!", comes the mighty master’s cry, whip in his hand and hate in his eye.

The slave is a man with nothing to give. He prays to his GOD with a will to live.

Give me my freedom and let me be.
The slave is a man and needs to be free.

For you can chain me up and tie my hands, make me work in this strange land.

Kept in this person by you and your kind, enslave my body, but never my mind.

National Assoc. for the Advancement of Colored People

Dear Friend:

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is in deep financial trouble. We need your help immediately.

Mississippi courts have awarded two crippling judgments, totaling more than $1,825,373 against the NAACP. To appeal this clearly biased action, Mississippi law requires that the NAACP and other defendants must post a bond amounting to 125% of the judgment.

The State of Mississippi has sought to put the NAACP out of business for more than half a century. It must not succeed.

During the 1930-40's, lynching was the tool; in the 1950-60's, bombs and bullets. Now, in the 70's, unconstitutional state laws are used to bankrupt the NAACP with unconscionable judgments. To appeal this latest Mississippi action, the NAACP must raise $1,563,373.

You can assist by making an interest-free loan of $1,000 or more to the Association, or by sending the largest possible tax-deductible contribution to the NAACP Special Contribution Fund. You can also contact your friends and associates and ask them to make similar loans and gifts to the Association.

We are counting on you to join us in this fight for survival by responding immediately to this appeal.

Sincerely,
Roy Wilkins
Executive Director
